Bernard Ham is a highly experienced corporate and regulatory lawyer who concentrates his practice on advising biotech, pharmaceutical, medical device and healthcare companies in their complex cross border transactions and regulatory (Medicare/Medicaid, fraud and abuse, FDA) matters. Bernard has a broad experience in life sciences and healthcare, having served as a government legal counsel in the US Department of Health and Human Services, as a senior executive responsible for business development at a Korea based global medical device company, and as a member of the life sciences and healthcare practice groups at major global law firms. Bernard frequently speaks at conferences on healthcare/life sciences subject matters, is a contributing author to the Korea Biomedicine Industry Association publications, and, as an active member of the American Health Lawyers Association for nearly two decades, contributed many articles to the Association's publications.
